little Souls Bogotá[®]

In the heart of Colombia's capital, a film is coming to life that shows the power of compassion and dedication: The Kinderhilfswerk für Bogotá e.V. operates schools, kindergartens, and community centers across four neighborhoods—places where around 1,800 children learn, laugh, and find new opportunities every day. Our documentary provides an intimate look at this work.

It tells the stories of children who look toward the future with curiosity despite poverty and difficult circumstances, and of the religious sisters who offer them stability and support day in, day out.

The production and marketing of 'Little Souls Bogotá' are completely independent—handled entirely by us, from initial planning and filming to the final release.

To bring this project to life and share it with a wider audience, we need your support. Every donation helps cover the ongoing costs of filming, post-production, film festival entries, and outreach. Your contribution ensures that the stories of these children and their caregivers are seen and remembered.

This documentary also serves as a pilot project, paving the way for future social initiatives. Every journey begins with a single step—and our choice of Bogotá, Colombia, came about through a fortunate mix of personal and organizational connections. Through our work, we aim to bring the lives of these children closer to our audience, making their reality truly tangible. Every financial contribution helps us bring this vision to life and sustainably expand our reach.
